Not illustrated. 1893 Excerpt: . it exported no less than 812,700, a significant indication of the extensive changes which are taking place in the Australian sugar trade. Sugar has been cultivated with success in the Northern Territory of South Australia, and is beginning to be exported from that colony, but the development of the industry is retarded by the dearness and scarcity of labour. A considerable quantity of Australian sugar is consumed in the manufacture of confectionery, a branch of industry which is rapidly attaining large proportions in Australia, especially in Victoria, where, the various kinds, of sweetmeats are found equal to the best imported. QUEENSLAND. RESULT OF WORKING AT HARANA FACTORY, MACKAY. The Mackay Sugar Journal for March supplies some results of working which have been communicated, and which are considered as specially interesting, as being the best and most complete published so far, although not the best attained in Queensland, and also because they are based upon scientific chemical and other investigation. The Sugar Journal compares these results with some published results from Louisiana, Hawaii, Cuba, and Java, and concludes that Queensland's strong point is the high extraction of sugar obtained at the rollers (91.7 per cent, in the present case), and that the weak point at present, which is capable of being much improved, is the loss in the works. We think it may be useful for comparison and future reference to put these figures on record. Return Of Results Obtained At Harana (Mackay)...
