Excerpt: .the hemlocks and the hill, in the cool washed air, as if I appreciated the absence of insects from it. It suggested, agreeably to me, a mere space in which to walk briskly. The fields are, as it were, vacated. The very earth is like a house shut up for the winter, and I go knocking about it in vain. But just then I heard a chickadee in a hemlock, and was inexpressibly cheered to find that an old acquaintance was yet stirring about the premises, and was, I was assured, to be there all winter. All that is evergreen in me revived at once. The very moss (the little pine moss) in Hos-mer s meadow is revealed by its greenness amid the withered grass and stubble. Going up the lane beyond Farmer s, I was surprised to see fly up from the white stony...
